

Lodge Tells How Allied Guns Drive Off Nazi Bombers

Associated Press Writer Slips Into Namsos, Is Arrested and Then Set Free

Town Is Wrecked

Allied Reprisals Give the Population First Easy Moments

(J. Norman Lodge, Associated Press reporter who was arrested by British troops near the far-north Norwegian port of Narvik when he penetrated to their lines around that city and later was released, has sent the following description of destruction at Namsos, Norway, by German bombers and of allied measures taken to guard against further Nazi attacks.)

(So far as is known, Lodge is the first United States newspaperman to get into Namsos and to give a first-hand account of what is happening there.)

On April 17, Lodge reached the outskirts of the German-held port of Narvik, in far-north Norway, but British outposts arrested him and turned him over to Norwegian troops with instructions that he be escorted across the border to Sweden.)

By J. NORMAN LODGE
Formosa, Norway (about 20 miles east of Namsos) April 30.—German air raids on the allied troops at Namsos, which have turned parts of that Norwegian coastal town into wreckage, took a sharp decline yesterday when British anti-aircraft guns opened up full blast and drove a surprised German bomber high into the upper air.

After that blast the air alarms which have kept the entire Namsos area anxious since the first days of Germany's invasion of Norway lessened by 80 per cent.

Alive With Batteries
Namsos, which has steep rising cliffs on the north side, a fjord in the center and more hills on the south, now is literally alive with British and French anti-aircraft batteries. Each is manned by crack shots especially chosen to bolster the morale of the Norwegians, who have clung to their homes in this embattled town.

German fliers, who, according to Norwegian airmen, formerly flew over the entire sector from Namsos to the Swedish border, about 75 miles to the east, as if it were their own private airfield, realized for the first time yesterday that they would meet resistance.

When a 5 a. m. breakfast call was made over Namsos harbor by the German air force, a German bomber dropped an "egg" (bomb) but also "laid an egg" for the British batteries opened up and chased the aviator into the higher air.

As a result the residents who refused to flee from their homes now walked unconcerned about their business.

I walked through Namsos yesterday and found the town, especially the lower end near the harbor, virtually wrecked. Every house in the lower part of the town is razed, with huge holes showing where German bombs hit.

One bomb crater in the center square of the lower section measured 30 feet across.

Incendiary Bombs
Other damage apparently was caused by incendiary bombs, for ruins of the buildings were charred and the bricks were well smoked.

Despite previous reports that anti-aircraft had been set up in the Namsos area since the first days of the German invasion, a British officer let the cat out of the bag as I talked with him.

Asked if he had come close to hitting an enemy aircraft, he replied: "Hell, man, we've only been set up five hours—haven't even warmed up the gun yet."

Further inquiry elicited the information that all British batteries and the French rapid fire guns were erected only yesterday.

I was told that the only French troops in Norway up to this time are the famed Alpine Chasseurs, or "Blue Devils," equally at home on skis or on foot.

They belong to the same regiments which helped train the first American divisions in France during the World War.

I inquired if any of the troops here were in the last war, for men of this regiment helped train my 26th Division from September 1917 until early in 1918.

(Lodge is a veteran of the World War.)

I found only one here, Rene Langres, who went to the Lunenburg sector with the American division in December, 1917.

He said reports that the French Foreign Legion was in Norway were ridiculous.

The prestige of France would not allow such a thing," he said. "The first French units must be of French nationality. That's the way my country operates."

British officers told the same story.

"There are a few Canadians here," said one, "but they are mostly in the air force. All land

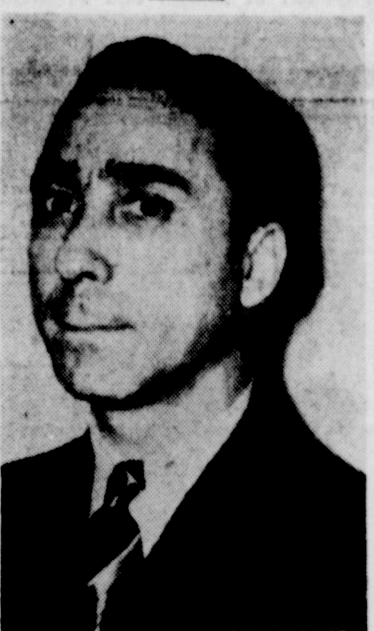

F.D.R.'S Mother Has Sudden Illness

Mrs. Sarah Delano Roosevelt, the President's 85-year-old mother, is shown being assisted into her New York home after suffering a sudden illness while motoring in from a luncheon on Long Island and a tour of the World's Fair grounds. Usually spry for her years, she assured her son, who telephoned from the White House, that she was "feeling fine." She told him "it was just a little stomach trouble."

County to Choose Blossom Queen at Local Auditorium

Selection, Amateur Show Will Take Place at 8 Tomorrow Evening; 18 Girls Listed

SALVATORE CASTIGLIONE

All is ready for the Ulster county selection of a queen and princesses to compete at the Hudson Valley Apple Blossom Festival in this city May 11. Final elimination contests will be held Wednesday evening at the Kingston Municipal Auditorium, which is expected to be filled to capacity for the event.

Commander John Melville of Kingston Post, American Legion, today reported for his amateur show chairman, Ward Relyea, that the program is complete, and Al Kurdt of the Ulster County Farm Bureau released the list of girls to compete for the beauty title of Miss Ulster.

General Chairman of the American Legion Committee Stanley Dempsey said that tickets for the show, distributed by Eugene B. Carey, have been in great demand and indicate a capacity crowd. "Good seats probably will be at a premium soon after the doors open, and those who desire them should be on hand early," he said.

Opening the proceedings will be

Republicans Expect Greatest Fight In Phrasing 'Keep Out of War' Item

Washington, April 30 (AP)—While Democrats made a bid for harmony between Roosevelt and Garner forces in Texas, prominent Republicans forecast today that their own platform committee would have its greatest battle over phrasing a "keep out of war" plank.

After a series of talks with Governor Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota, the convention keynote, party leaders here disclosed a difference of opinion over the precise position which Republicans should take on foreign policy.

They generally agreed that the party should promise to keep the United States at peace, but they were split over the best methods of accomplishing that goal.

Senator Vandenberg (R-Mich.) and others were reported to want

Y. M. C. A. Drive Is Short of Goal And Crisis Looms

Final Report Shows Only $12,019.30 Pledged; Leaders at Loss for Reasons

With $25,000 needed and but $12,019.30 pledged the local Y. M. C. A. closed its financial drive, marking the 75th anniversary of the founding of the "Y" in Kingston at a meeting of the campaign workers on Monday evening. The campaign's end brings the problem as to what steps to take to carry on the "Y" activities during the year.

The "Y" directors with only half of the amount needed pledged, face a difficult problem when they meet shortly to discuss plans, and it was intimated at the meeting last evening that it may be necessary to curtail the association's activities.

Harry Martin, national "Y" representative, who has been in Kingston assisting in the campaign said that the local "Y" leaders were at a loss to understand the reason why the public response was not greater. He noted that contributions this year amounted to about the same as in other years, and said that the campaign that has just closed would have been a successful $10,000 campaign.

The sentiment of those who were called upon to speak by Principal Clarence Dumm of the high school, who was chairman of the drive, was that the public of Kingston evidently did not realize that the "Y" in order to carry on its program successfully needed the $25,000 which had been fixed as the goal.

The annual meeting of the board of directors will be held within two weeks in annual session to map a program and elect officers. The final reports of the campaign workers made last evening showed a total of 1,156 pledges obtained with $12,019.30 subscribed.

Condition Still Serious

Kenneth Marz, severely injured Saturday when thrown from a runaway horse, was reported still in serious condition at the Kingston Hospital today. Marz was injured when he collided with a truck on the Flatbush road near the boy's home.

Germans Close in Upon British From Three Points, Railway Is Captured; Nazis Attempt Peasant Garb Ruse

Some of Germans Are Captured; Writer Says Each Soldier Is Sort of Arsenal

Activity Is Noted

Experienced Alpine Troops Are Now in Use

By GUNNAR KNUTSSON

On the Steinkjer Front, Norway, April 30 (AP)—German troops have tried all manner of ruses to get through the Norwegian lines, sometimes dressing themselves in Norwegian peasant costumes in attempts to slip past allied guards.

A few, but not many, have been captured, according to allied officers here. On the way to the front I passed one little prison camp where several German Alpine troops and three aviators were under guard.

Altogether, I was told, about 30 German fliers from planes which had been shot or forced down now have been interned in this region. It would seem unquestionable that the young Germans fighting here are among the world's best armed and best trained soldiers.

Experienced Alpine troops traveling on skis are now having their innings on this unusual fighting front, and the first impression is that the German soldiers must be regarded as individual arsenals, so well are they equipped.

Sharp Patrol Activity

At the moment only sharp patrol activity occurs here, but the rough, forested area of the so-called Steinkjer front is being gradually developed into a battle area.

Part of the grim humor of the war is the plan of many soldiers to trap the foxes so that they may take the pelts home to their wives and sweethearts.

This planning is always with confidence that they will get home.

A British communiqué issued at Namsos said that "British land forces are in touch with the enemy north of Steinkjer." It said that British patrols had ambushed a German detachment, killing several and taking some prisoners. Enemy patrols were repulsed.

German warplanes made six attempts to attack Namsos yesterday but were driven off by British anti-aircraft fire. The German planes circled the Allied base six times but dropped bombs only once. One German plane was shot down, the British said.

The majority of the troops at Namsos are British, from Yorkshire. They were brought here from the western front in France. Namsos now looks like a western front town itself, with streams of troops and ambulances coming and going.

The French say they have lost eight dead in nine days of fighting here, and 27 wounded.

Union Formulates Shop Committee

Orons Says Group Plans Some Definite Action

As an aftermath of the payroll trouble at the Eastern Garment Co. plant, 40 Broadway, last Friday, and statements made yesterday by Eddie Glass, president of the concern, a meeting was held at the hall of the International Ladies Garment Workers' Union, 19 Railroad avenue, last night, and a shop committee was formulated.

Speaking for the union today, Louis Orons, one of the representatives, said: "The committee named last night will take action and report at another meeting to be held at our hall Wednesday night to further discuss the problems of the shop, then recommend definite action."

Regarding a worker's statement yesterday made in the press, about interference with non-union shops he countered with a complimentary editorial from a Newburgh newspaper which said "The International Ladies Garment Workers' Union has a record covering 40 years that speaks for itself. It is a peace-loving organization that willingly cooperates with employers as they cooperate with it."

Regarding yesterday's visit to the garment shop by a news reporter, Orons said, "At the meeting the girls resented the fact

French Barges, Tugs Quit Danube River

Bucharest, April 30 (AP)—The allied campaign to cripple Germany's Danube trade was advanced a step further today when 27 French-owned barges and tugs left the river en route to Istanbul.

Other river craft under allied control were concentrated at Sulina, Rumania, ready to leave the Danube at a moment's notice.

More than 300 barges and tugs leased or purchased by allied agents during the winter to keep them out of the Nazi service were reported sent to Istanbul in recent weeks.

Business Men, Others Bidden To Meet Challenge of Crisis

Carey Pleads for End of All Policies Against Institutions; Call Is for Leaders

Washington, April 30 (AP)—W. Gibson Carey, Jr., president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, called on business men and others today to meet "a great crisis" by campaigning for an end to federal policies which he said were undermining American institutions.

In an address prepared for the annual meeting of the chamber, the New York manufacturer sounded the slogan, "Build America!"

He said that the nation's great need was sound leadership in government, and added that in the past business men had failed in the field of citizenship.

"For the future, however, through our activity and that of others, we as a people must see that we effect corrections," Carey continued. "Here are those which seem most fundamental:

Must Cut Spending

"Carefully but surely, we must reduce federal expenditure and balance our national budget, including our vast federal corporations."

"Then we must begin paying our debt."

"In due course, we should further encourage productivity and the full use of our resources by reducing taxes, which are a first charge on the standard of living of every citizen, because they in-

Allies Retreat

High Command Reports Germans Force Back British-French

Berlin, April 30 (AP)—The German high command announced today that German forces in Norway have established land connections between their main bases at Oslo, the capital, in the south, and the west coast port of Trondheim.

A brief communiqué said: "German troops advancing north from Oslo by way of Tynset and south from Trondheim met today on the railroad southwest of Storen."

"Land connection between Oslo and Trondheim is thereby established."

(A British military source in London reported that the vital railway junction of Storen had been taken by the Germans and the allied position in that area had become "difficult.")

Earlier the high command had announced that German troops advancing toward Dombas, 80 miles south of Storen, had forced the allies to retreat all along the line.

Forces Can Be Cut

If the German line established between Oslo and Trondheim can be maintained and defended British concentrations at Andalsnes and Namsos can be cut off from each other by land.

The German army also is now in a much improved position if sufficient troops are at hand to strengthen its forces at Trondheim for drives against British forces in the coastal regions to the north and south.

Two lines of the Oslo-Trondheim railroad lead from Hamar north of Oslo to Storen near which the German troops joined hands to complete their contact between Oslo and Trondheim.

The communiqué seemed to indicate that the Germans now are in possession of the eastern and smaller rail line. An earlier official statement reported them following the other spur between Otta and Dombas.

None Too Secure

Continued German reports of engagements with Norwegian guerrilla bands indicated that the Nazi grip on the railroad was none too secure. Whether it could be used for the large scale transport of supplies is questioned by informed sources.

DNB, the German official news agency, reported from Copenhagen today that four British fliers who were shot down during a raid on the Aalborg airport had been buried near the town with military honors. The report said the anti-aircraft gun crew which shot down the British planes formed part of the honor guard at the grave.

New 'Seed of Death' Will Be Used To Combat Havoc of Japanese Beetle

College Park, Md., April 30 (AP)—On spring planting of a new "seed of death" is pinned the latest hope of blasting the rapid march of the voracious Japanese beetle.

The "seed" is a spore-producing bacterial disease—milky white. It is being "sown" over 2,000 square miles in Maryland where the beetle infestation is most severe.

The beetle is a scourge of farm crops, city lawns, gardens, and golf courses from Maine to Georgia, and west to St. Louis, with the heaviest "belt" from Connecticut to Maryland.

Damage is estimated in the hundreds of millions of dollars. If unimpeded, the beetle might spread over most of the nation.

The new "bacterial bullet" was discovered by the late Dr. G. F. White, U. S. Department of Agriculture entomologist. Federal tests in New Jersey showed it

British Concede Setbacks on Three Most Vital Fronts

Along With Sea and Land Losses, Some Snags in Diplomacy Struck With Russians

London, April 30 (AP)—The British conceded setbacks today on the land, sea and diplomatic fronts.

Military sources said the Germans had captured Storen, railroad junction 30 miles south of Nazi-held Trondheim, which may prove to be the key to the whole campaign in Norway.

The admiralty announced that two submarines were overdue and must be regarded as lost. They are the 1,095-ton Tarpon, which carried a normal crew of 53, and the 678-ton Sterlet, whose complement was 40.

This raised Britain's loss of undersea craft to seven of the 57 with which she entered the war last September and the known loss of life to 188.

The admiralty also disclosed the sinking of the 452-ton trawler Bradman and the 590-ton trawler Cape Siretoko, but said there was no loss of life in either case.

Talks Hit Snag

As trade talks with Russia struck a snag over Russian exports to Germany, Ronald H. Cross, minister directing the British blockade, pleaded for American "understanding" of economic warfare.

Cross said that copper, rubber, tin and other materials, much of it from the United States, were reaching Germany through Vladivostok, Russia's Pacific port, in such quantities they were an "undoubtedly serious" leak in the blockade.

He told the American Chamber of Commerce that "we wonder sometimes how far it is generally realized in your country that important supplies of key war materials have reached Germany in this way."

The royal air force swung into

German Reports Tell That Columns Push on Toward Strategic Storen

Dombas Is Taken

City 100 Miles South of Trondheim Falls to Germans

Stockholm, April 30 (AP)—German troops were reported to be slowly closing in from three directions on British troops at Storen in central Norway today while the Allies, apparently strongly entrenched, fiercely defended the railway linking that base with the coast.

Storen is strategically important because so long as it stays in British hands the German-held port of Trondheim, 35 miles north, remains cut off by rail from southern Norway, on which the Nazis are gradually extending their hold.

German reports indicated that a column of Nazi troops advancing southward from Trondheim was within 25 miles of a second column closing in on Storen from the east, after driving up the Glomma river valley past Roros.

Still a third German force, moving in a northwesterly direction, was reported near Inset, 15 miles south of Storen, and within striking distance of the vital railway connecting that town with the coast, via Dombas.

Dombas Falls

The capture of Dombas, vital railway junction 100 miles south of Trondheim, by the advancing German forces in Norway was officially announced today.

Shortly before that, German advance troops farther north had effected a land link between Oslo and the German-held port of Trondheim, meeting on the railway south of Storen and apparently locking the southern gate to Trondheim.

There were no further details concerning the capture of Dombas, which is 80 miles south of Storen on the same railway and forms the junction point for lines from Trondheim and from Andalsnes.

Allied forces, landed at Andalsnes, and rushed eastward to Dombas, have been defending Dombas in heavy fighting for several days.

Approximately 35 miles south-east of Dombas the British were reported engaged in a major battle with a German force in the Gudbrands valley between Otta and Kvam, which was said to have fallen to the Nazis yesterday.

Fighting also was reported 20 miles north of Dombas, where the Germans were attempting to cut the Dombas-Storen railway at Hjerkingen after pushing westward across mountainous country.

Swedish correspondents said the British and Norwegians were occupying strategically strong positions along the Dombas-Storen railway, reinforced with machine-gun nests and light artillery.

While the main theatre of action appeared to be centered south of Trondheim, increasing patrol operations were reported on the Steinkjer front, 50 miles to the north.

Patrols Are Scattered

The Stockholm newspaper Tidningen, quoted Norwegian military headquarters as saying that British and French troops entrenched along the shores of Lake Snasa, a few miles north of Steinkjer, had scattered German patrols in a flurry of fighting, in which a number of Nazis were killed and some taken prisoner.

The Norwegians described the newly consolidated allied positions as extremely favorable in this sector. Railway tracks along the south side of the lake have been ripped up to prevent the Germans from using this approach to Snasa, at the northern end of the lake.

Correspondents who talked to Norwegian officers said that their total losses here in the past few days have amounted to about 30 men, while the British losses have been "perhaps heavier."

Some Norwegian sources said that at least 200 Germans had been killed in a single day on the Steinkjer front.

The Norwegians said the allied position in this area had been greatly strengthened recently by the arrival of British fighting planes, which lessened the pressure the Germans have been exerting from the air.

The Tidningen correspondent quoted one British staff officer as saying the allies were hopeful that they might be able to break through at Steinkjer and drive the Germans out of Trondheim in the next three weeks, but he cautioned against undue optimism.

The same correspondent asserted that the Germans had been making use of submarines to

U. S. Movie Shows How Counterfeiters Work

1. Professional money-passers usually work in pairs. These two have stopped their car near a grocery store where a passing job will be attempted. The fellow in the driver's seat is taking a bogus $10 bill from a flashlight cylinder used to conceal a roll of counterfeits. His companion will attempt to pass the bill.

2. The passer has presented the phoney $10 in payment for a small purchase. But the alert girl clerk suspects that the bill is spurious. She detains him under pretext of insufficient change in the cash register. She calls the manager to ask for change. The manager detects the counterfeit, phones the police.

3. A policeman arrives and takes the bogus-bill passer into custody. (The actual passer usually carries only one bogus bill into a store with him, so that if apprehended he may be able to persuade a policeman that he himself is an innocent victim of counterfeiting. A second policeman has advanced on the car outside.)

How To Know Counterfeit Money

VERY DANGEROUS $10 COUNTERFEIT FEDERAL RESERVE NOTE

PLACE THIS NOTICE ON OR NEAR YOUR CASH REGISTER

WHEN A STRANGER GIVES YOU A COUNTERFEIT BILL

1. DO NOT RETURN IT!
2. TELEPHONE POLICE AT ONCE!
3. DELAY THE PASSER UNDER A PRETEXT.
4. AVOID ARGUMENT, IF NECESSARY, TELL THEM THE POLICE WILL HANDLE THE MATTER.
5. WRITE DOWN A DESCRIPTION OF THE PASSER LEAVES.
6. TAKE THE TAG NUMBERS OF ANY CARS INVOLVED.

WHEN YOU RECEIVE A GREEN SEAL BILL WITH CHECK LETTERS AND NUMBERS, COMPARE IT WITH A GENUINE BILL!

THE COUNTERFEIT PORTRAIT WILL BE EITHER TOO BLACK OR TOO LIGHT, AND WILL LACK THE DELICATE DETAIL OF THE GENUINE.

First, observe carefully the portrait of the famous American on the bill. The genuine is lifelike, stands out from oval background which is a fine screen of regular lines. Notice particularly the eyes. The portrait on the counterfeit is dull, smudgy or unnaturally white; scratchy; background is dark with irregular and broken lines.

Second, study the seal. On genuine bills, sawtooth points around the rim are identical and sharp. On counterfeit, sawtooth points are usually different, uneven, broken off.

Third, inspect the serial numbers. On genuine, they have distinctive style, are firmly and evenly printed; are of same color as seal. On counterfeit the style is apt to be different, poorly printed, badly spaced, uneven in appearance.

Fourth, inspect the paper. Good bills are printed on distinctive paper containing very small red and blue silk threads.

WHY PAY FOR NOISE?

When you buy an ordinary typewriter you pay for a bundle of noise. Noise that frays nerves, promotes errors and prevents clear thinking. If typewriters had been made noiseless from the beginning would you go out and buy a noisy machine? Certainly not! Then when it is no longer necessary to buy noise with a typewriter why suffer this annoyance. The quiet of the Remington Noiseless is one of the greatest contributions to modern business comfort and efficiency.

Remington NOISELESS

This new Remington Noiseless will do everything demanded of a typewriter, not merely better, but QUIETLY. In the General Office, the Stenographic Department, the Private Office, thinking and working are best done in quiet . . . and it is here that there is no substitute for the Remington Noiseless. For correspondence of the better sort, for matchless printwork, for manifold and stencil paper excellence, this Remington has won the title of "The World's finest writing machine."

Quebec Hotelmen Visit City

Approximately 50 members of the Province of Quebec Hotel Association stopped at the Governor Clinton Hotel yesterday afternoon for lunch. There were more than 25 cars in the motorcade bound for Atlantic City, when they drove into Kingston with police and a state trooper escort. Left to right are: Maurice Chartrand, president of the Canadian Association; Leon Trepanier, Raymond Gross, manager of the Governor Clinton Hotel; P. E. Joubert, member of the Tourist and Convention Bureau; and Maurice Hebert, Division General of Tourism of the Province of Quebec.

British Concede Setbacks on Three Most Vital Fronts

action on the Norwegian coast, bombing Fornebu airport and engaging German bombers in several air battles. Two Nazi planes were shot down, it was reported authoritatively.

While the war office kept silent, a military source said the Germans had taken hotly-contested Stora and described the allied position in the Dombas sector, 80 miles south of Stora on the Oslo-Trondheim railroad, as "difficult."

(In Berlin, the German high command announced that Nazi troops from Oslo and Trondheim met today on the railroad southwest of Stora and established land connections between the Norwegian capital and the vital west coast port.)

"Magnificent" Flight
The military source here said the British fought "magnificently" on the night of April 28-29 and repulsed a German attack southeast of Dombas. Several tanks were reported destroyed in sharp fighting.

The allies were reported to have landed more troops on three points on the western coast of Norway. The British also were said to be using large flying boats to speed specially trained and equipped troops to the Norwegian fjords, where they were ordered to prepare for air and land operations.

In the efforts of the British to negotiate a trade agreement with Russia the Soviet stand that the Russian exports of goods to Germany is Russia's "own affair," has made more difficult Britain's attempt to plug another leak in her blockade of Germany.

The Russian position was given in a reply to recent British offers to negotiate an agreement, and sources close to the foreign office said the answer was "not considered satisfactory."

The Soviet ambassador to London, Ivan Maisky, was reported to have told Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax last night that Russia was willing to discuss a trade agreement on certain conditions.

The question of exports to Germany also was reported to be confronting Britain in efforts to reach a trade bargain with Italy.

Maistry was said to have told Halifax his country would be willing to consider a trade agreement which would bar re-export of British goods to Germany.

Presents Insistence
However, Maisky was said to have presented his government's insistence on unrestricted exports to Germany of purely Russian goods.

Reuters (British news agency) reported today from Namsos that Polish and Czech legionnaires are among the allied troops now "pouring into Norway in a steady flow."

The dispatch said that German troops are continuing to arrive in Norway but "it is thought" not as fast as the Allied reinforcements.

Most of the Germans are coming in airplanes, "thirty or forty at a time," or in coastal vessels capable of transporting not more than 100 men each, Reuters said.

The Allied troops were said to be debarking "at the original landing points and at some fresh places along the Norwegian west coast."

Allied naval and land forces were reported to be delaying "a vital attack on beleaguered Germans at Narvik" until they can assure themselves of the safety of Norwegian civilians whom the Germans won't allow to leave the town.

Most Successful Season
New York, April 30 (P)—The Ringling Brothers-Barnum & Bailey Circus ends its most successful New York season since 1926 today with evidence that some long-hidden money came out of hiding. Six old-style dollar bills showed up in Sunday's receipts. The big show played to approximately 680,000 people since its opening April 5, 30 per cent better than last year. The circus opens in Boston Thursday.

troops you see here are from the British Isles, mostly north countrymen.

The broad Yorkshire and Lancashire dialects bore out his statement. The soldiers I talked to were enthusiastic about the Norwegian countryside but each regretted the lack of sufficient tea.

Noted Skier Present
The majority of the French troops arrived eight days ago. Among them is Maurice Lafoque, from Chamoix, noted French skier whose ability is a great asset here.

He told me the Alpine troops arrived with a convoy of two destroyers and two torpedo boats.

The crying need in this sector at present is telephone and telegraph communications.

A single telephone must be divided between the military of three nations, journalists of many more and the citizenry—with the last group taking a bad beating.

The only telegraph wire out is manned by a telegrapher who is opposed to working overtime.

The only other way to get information to the outer world is a brutal trip over the Sandala Mountains, which now are thawing. The trip requires at least 30 hours and if there is much two-way traffic, there is danger of frequent ditchings.

After that trip, one reaches the Swedish town of Gaddede, where foreigners are allowed to remain only two hours. Another mountain trip of several hours is required to reach Stromsund, the next telegraph station.

Bail Set at $200
Differences between neighbors in the Dashville section resulted in the arrest Monday night by Deputy Sheriffs Vredenburg and Winne of Rene Funaro, 42 of Dashville. The arrest was on a warrant charging assault, first degree, the complainant being Augustus Claus. Funaro was arraigned before Justice Benjamin H. Sleight, of Port Ewen, and furnished bail in the sum of $200 for appearance at a hearing to be held Saturday, May 4, at 2 p. m.

Garage Burns
Backfire of a small truck is said to have ignited the recently completed garage storage house of Halsey F. Sherwood in Wailkill Sunday, razed the building and 42 automobiles stored there. Damage was estimated at more than $15,000, partly covered by insurance. The building was 120 by 50 feet and was not fully completed. Painting of the structure was to have started Monday.

Games Are Annulled
Brussels, April 30 (P)—Count Henri Baillet Latour, chairman of the Olympics committee, said today that the 1940 Olympic Games were officially "annulled." Cancellation of the games had been announced in Helsinki April 23 at a joint meeting of the organization committee and the permanent Finnish Olympic committee. The two groups decided that the international situation made it impossible to hold the games this summer.

In Memory of Cadet
Columbia, Mo., April 30 (P)—Kemper Military School cadets and their dates dined and danced last night in memory of Cadet J. E. (Jimmy) Parker, Jr., killed in an automobile accident. The strange memorial was arranged at the insistence of Jimmy's father, who told school authorities "I want to do something for the boys in Jimmy's company."

B.P.W. Is at Work Fixing New Office

Employees of the public works board were busy today getting the former police lounging room, across the hall from police headquarters in the city hall, ready for office use by the recently organized Kingston Industrial Bureau.

Carpenters from the public works board erected a partition in the room, making a separate room in which to house the radio station of the police department. The remaining space in the large room will be the office space of the industrial bureau.

When it was decided to have an office centrally located for the Industrial Bureau, Mayor C. J. Heiselman offered the use of the room in the city hall, which was accepted. With an office on the first floor of the city hall the bureau believes it will be ideally located in a place available to those desiring to use the services of the bureau.

Women to Meet
The Ladies' Aid Society of the Fair Street Reformed Church will meet in the Sunday school rooms on Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock.

Decorators Given Preview Of Color and Style Service

New products, new painting procedures, and a new paint and color style service were the topics of discussion last night when a large group of painting and decorating contractors, guests of J. R. Shults, met at the Stuyvesant Hotel.

Messrs. J. R. Wright and J. Brame, factory experts from the Sherwin-Williams Co., largest paint and varnish makers in the world, opened the meeting with a highly interesting discussion and demonstration of painting progress made during the past year. They then treated the group to a special preview of a remarkable paint and color style service that will soon be available to the homeowners of Kingston, either through their painters or through their neighborhood Sherwin-Williams dealer.

Local Jeweler Installs New Type Lighting System

Recently installed at G. A. Schneider & Son, jewelers in the Broadway Theatre Building is a new type of display that is of unusual appeal to everyone interested in modern lighting.

The display employing the lighting plan at the World's Fair—fluorescent illumination—exhibits a wide range of pens with all the candid, glareless intensity of full daylight. Fluorescent lighting is within four per cent of actual daylight according to U.S. Standards, and was chosen for the World's Fair as the ideal method of showing merchandise in its full natural beauty and lustre.

Kingston Motorists WAR On "SCREWDRIERS" and "SCREWJAYS"

CHUMMY "SCREWDRIERS"
What a dandy place to talk it all over! Remember, your engine uses 3 times as much gasoline in low and second gears as in high—when a "Screwdriver" or "Screwjays" brings you to a needless stop, you pay.

SHADOW-BOXING "SCREWJAYS"
—He leads with his left—he feints with his right—jam on your brakes, he's going to make a rush! "Screwjays"—heedless pedestrians—cause 10% of all Stop-and-Go driving, to say nothing of needless accidents.

"When the Share-the-Road movement started, traffic officials welcomed it—but no one could have predicted it would reach its present amazing size. Now, going after the heedless pedestrians as well as driver, this crusade is doubly deserving of success!"

Chas. Lephore
Director of the American Road Builders' Association

DO YOU want to see Kingston Stop-and-Go reduced a full third? It can be done!

"Screwdrivers" and "Screwjays" cause 35% of this wasteful kind of driving.

To take your stand AGAINST careless, discourteous driving and walking habits, join the Share-the-Road Club. It's a nation-wide crusade of 5,000,000 motorists banded together in the interests of common-sense driving, careful walking.

Your support of this movement is needed. Join the Share-the-Road Club at your Shell dealer's today. You'll receive the new Day-and-Night Share-the-Road Emblem for your car FREE.

KINGSTON, NEW YORK, APRIL 30, 1940.

SCHOOL MUSIC

The Eastern New York State Musical Festival finals will be held in Poughkeepsie on Thursday with high school bands, orchestras, choirs, drum majors and soloists coming from all over the eastern half of the state participating. More than 5,000 students and spectators are expected to attend.

Representatives of the Kingston High School will compete in the vocal and instrumental departments.

Similar stories appear frequently in other states and other sections of the country. Even in schools where youngsters can't have the finest instruments or best individual instruction, surprisingly good musical work is done nowadays. Beginning with rhythm bands, in which only crude instruments borrowed from mother's kitchen or father's work bench are available, children progress in musical skill. Their performance is pleasing even to critical ears more often than the uninformed might suspect.

Some day, from such education and enthusiasm will come not only a host of music-lovers but also a goodly number of professional musicians and perhaps even composers.

BE THANKFUL

While the rest of the world is depressed by wars and the misery they entail, it is interesting to know that two great fairs for education and amusement will again open shortly in New York and San Francisco.

What a contrast to the death, destruction and debt that face warring nations. At the fairs in California and New York will be presented a record of industrial and intellectual achievement for the betterment of humanity.

This nation should feel most thankful that it can devote itself to such constructive undertakings. Our record of progress as shown in these two great fairs, should be an object lesson to our citizens to stand firmly for policies which recognize the superiority of intelligence over brute force in securing lasting settlements of disputed questions.

Let us hope that as our people visit these interesting expositions on the two sides of our continent, they will think of the important principles they represent beyond the mere giving of pleasure. Be thankful you can travel in America as a free citizen and enjoy the privileges it has to offer.

SAY LESS AND SAW WOOD

It may be true, as Col. Frank Knox, the Chicago publisher, remarked at New York last week, that the United States would have to seize British islands in the Caribbean Sea if Britain lost the war. That, of course, would not be cooperation with Germany to help loot Britain, but a move to keep Germany out of that sensitive region and safeguard the Panama Canal.

It might or might not follow, as he suggested, that "Germany would regard that as an act of war," with the implication that the Nazis would probably attack us.

But really, isn't there too much discussion of this sort of thing going on now in the United States? Especially if, as Colonel Knox and various other well-informed observers suggest, Hitler has a 50-50 chance of winning?

Wouldn't it be better not to be so definite and outspoken about what other powers will do to us, and what we'll do to them? Wouldn't it be better to say little and saw wood? To go ahead, quietly and efficiently, putting our own defenses in order and, while hoping and planning for peace, make ourselves ready for defensive war against any possible aggressor?

TRIPS, REAL OR DREAMED

The vacation problem that faces most people is not where to go but how to finance the trip. Sometimes, of course, it's the difficulty of choosing among many enticing possibilities. There are also prospective vacationists who need the advice of experts. Fortunately there is plenty of help for them.

Travel books are very popular these days, and very numerous. They often cost real money, but never lack for buyers. Then there are the free folders prepared by travel agencies, by railroad and steamship companies, by hotel and resort associations. Many of these are almost as fascinating and as beautifully illustrated as the aforementioned books.

Chambers of commerce and state publicity bureaus contribute their quota to this literature, and the government gladly comes through with information about national parks and forests.

It's a grand between-vacations pastime to study maps and leaflets and books about America's scenic and historic glories and the places where one may flock with fellow vacationers or invite his soul in peaceful solitude. As a matter of fact, it's so much fun that it almost compensates for not being such a continuous traveler as Ernie Pyle.

LEADERS OF OPINION

Small-town newspapers have a better chance to represent public opinion truly and to serve the public effectively than the metropolitan papers have, says John S. McCarrens, president of the American Newspaper Publishers' Association.

"True public opinion," he explains, "is first crystallized not in the capitals, and not in the big cities, but on the plains and through the farm valleys and in the home towns. There is where newspapers of less than 50,000 circulation have a singular advantage and responsibility."

It doesn't take editors and papers of this class so long, he says, to determine what the local people feel about issues and ideas. Often the small cities are considerably ahead of the government itself, in knowing what is going on and having a pretty good notion of what to do about it.

All of which naturally pleases the small-city people and their fellow-citizens of the press, and probably has the additional merit of being true.

Observers wonder why Russia is taking no farther part now in the European burglary business. Maybe Stalin is tired of his partners, or maybe the Bear is just licking his wounds.

This is the most unanimous campaign! Nearly everybody, no matter what he's for or against, claims to be a liberal.

Somebody may have to make up the Duce's mind for him, and France is willing.

RHEUMATISM—PUBLIC DANGER NO. 1

Heart disease is so common, standing first on the list as a cause of death, that most of us may think that the heart gets worn out as we get older and is not strong enough to continue its work of pumping the blood to all parts of the body.

While some hearts may fail because of an overactive thyroid gland, in most cases it is because the heart has been damaged by infection that we find young, and middle-aged men and women having to live a "careful" life. And in a great many cases it is rheumatism that was the first cause of damaging the valves and the muscles of the heart.

We are apt to think that cancer is Public Danger No. 1, but Lord Thomas Horder, chairman of the Empire Rheumatism Council, London, England, in a broadcast under the auspices of American Heart Association said:

"In our country, Rheumatic Disease is the greatest of killers though it conceals its murders under the mask of Heart Disease. On the evidence of trustworthy authorities we find that in Great Britain as you do in America also, organic disease of the heart, chiefly due to rheumatism and organic heart disease, is the cause of over one-third or our normal death rate. And one does not need to be a doctor to know of the number of heart cripples that are strewn throughout the community as the result of rheumatic inflammation during childhood."

The first thought then in preventing heart disease is to find the cause. As the cause is so often rheumatism the first step is to try to find the cause of rheumatism.

What causes rheumatism? From statistics gathered by the American Heart Association and the Empire Rheumatism Council, the two outstanding causes are infection—teeth, tonsils, gall bladder, large intestine, —and climate and surroundings.

Dr. Horder states that circumstances of early surroundings—coldness, dampness, lack of good food, make the child's body a more favorable soil in which the infection can flourish.

It is the damage done in early life by infection and cold, damp surroundings that causes the heart to fail in early middle life.

By living carefully, these middle-aged heart patients may be spared for many years, but if heart disease is to be overcome, the removal of infection, the use of good, nourishing food, and wearing warm clothing is necessary.

To Plant 11 Million Young Forest Trees

Albany, April 30.—With more favorable weather in prospect, the Conservation Department announced today that plans had been completed for setting in the ground more than 11 million young forest trees within the next five weeks. Trees have already been planted and are being shipped to the 17 counties included in the spring program. Actual planting operations will begin just as soon as weather conditions permit.

Although cold rains, frequent snow storms and deep drifts still block many roads in the hilly sections of the state, Commissioner Lithgow Osborne under whose charge the state-wide reforestation program is carried out, said that operations would be intensified at the first sign of favorable weather to insure completion before the end of next month. "AT CENTURY'S TURN"

By H. L. VAN DEUSEN

The formation recently of the Kingston Industrial Bureau recalls to mind the days of the old board of trade. Forty years ago the board met and re-elected its officers for 1900. They were: President, Edward T. Stelle; first vice president, M. E. Moore; second vice president, John W. Salzmann, Sr.; third vice president, Isaac N. Weiner; secretary, John H. Gregory, and treasurer, Major James H. Everett.

The directors elected were: John W. Salzmann, Sr., John J. Campbell, Andrew N. Barnes, William J. Turck, Jr., Henry E. Wieber, Henry W. Otis, Herbert Carl, Robert Wilson, Mortimer C. Drake, Edward T. Stelle, George J. Smith, Major J. H. Everett, Isaac N. Weiner, Reuben Bernard, Dr. W. F. Holmes and M. E. Moore.

The board of trade was active for many years and later was succeeded by the Chamber of Commerce which possessed out of the picture some years ago. Since then three business men's associations have been working to advance the business interests of uptown, central and downtown business sections of the city.

Older readers as they read the names of those active in the old board of trade will recall that all of the men named were active in the business and industrial life of the city at the turn of the century.

Kingston in the early 1900's had many stores of which it was proud. Many will recall for instance Broadhead & Van Wagenen's dry goods store on the Strand, Sampson Brothers, clothing in the Freeman downtown, Harry P. Carr had a sporting goods store on North Front street.

W. H. Rider had a music store on Wall street, while Forsyth & Davis on Wall street sold books, phonographs and graphophones. There was also up town Styles & Kierstedt, the corner book store.

James O. Merritt & Company had a large drygoods store on Wall street. The Canfield Stove Company was in business on the Strand; Gregory & Barnes operated a furniture store on central Broadway, now Gregory & Company, while Stock & Corlies is still in business handling furniture on lower Broadway.

Oppenheimer Brothers, the Broadway jewelers, are still in business, while the Kingston Carriage Company plant on central Broadway is but a memory today.

Another furniture house on the Strand was Wachmeyer's, while J. T. Johnson had a hardware store on the same street. Another dry goods house on Wall street was that of Mortimer C. Drake, and nearby was G. A. Hart & Company. Downtown on lower Broadway was Crosby & Ennis, while Noah Wolven was on Wall street.

Clothing houses in the city included Cohen's, now Flanagan's, on Wall street, Sam Bernstein & Company on Wall street, while across the street was Marblestone's.

These are but a few of the business houses at the turn of the century. Some of them are still active in the business life of Kingston.

trees have been raised at the state's forest tree nurseries at Saratoga and Lowville, with the exception of 255,000 Japanese larch seedlings supplied by the Soil Conservation Service and 30,000 trees raised at the experimental nursery operated by C.C.C. Camp N-92 Almond, Allegany county.

Persons Who Purport to Speak for President on Capitol Hill Are Perplexing Problem to Chief Executive

By DAVID LAWRENCE

Washington, April 30.—President Roosevelt has had plenty of problems and perplexities since he has been in the White House, but none so confusing as the number of persons who purport to speak for him on Capitol Hill.

Within the last few days word has been spread that the President was going to "veto" this or that measure. The obvious purpose, of course, is to influence members of the House not to exercise their own judgment on the ground that what they may do will prove futile. So far as is known, the President has not written any letters threatening to veto the Wagner Labor Act amendments or the wage and hour bill or the Walter-Logan bill, but on Capitol Hill, those who want no legislation at all on these subjects are endeavoring to speak for the President in saying he will veto them all.

Mr. Roosevelt did write a letter, declaring he would prefer to have Congress wait awhile before passing amendments to the wage and hour law, but he did not say he would veto any or all measures approved by Congress on this subject. The normal legislative process calls for full consideration by the House and then by the Senate, after which a conference committee would naturally attempt further revision. To put the President in the position of refusing to permit Congress to legislate at all under a threat of a blanket veto of whatever may be done is so extraordinary that few members of Congress will credit any such position no matter whether it is attributed to him by administration leaders or any other so-called spokesmen for the White House.

As for the Walter-Logan bill, the President in a press conference indicated his dissatisfaction with some aspects of the measure, but there is still available the process of amendment in both Houses. The administration has conceded that remedies must be devised to cure the ill of procedure in administrative commissions, but for the President to be represented as desiring to block all attempts at legislation under a threat of veto is not accurate.

Then there are the proposed amendments to the Wagner Labor Relations Law. Some of these amendments are unquestionably disapproved by the labor board members, but there is no proof as yet that the labor board is the spokesman of the President on the subject of labor legislation. It is true that the C. I. O. has issued pamphlets and broadcast its view that there must be no amendments to the Wagner Act at this session, but it can be set down as doubtful that the C. I. O. is as yet the spokesman for the White House, or that a presidential veto is intended no matter what amendments are passed by Congress to the present labor law.

The frequent use of the veto threat is one that has been experienced many times heretofore by Congress under this and other administrations, but usually this sort of warfare is part of the effort to influence negative action by the House or the Senate, as the case may be. Sometimes when word goes out that a veto may be forthcoming, it works just the other way. Some members, feeling sure that a piece of legislation objectionable to a portion of their constituents, but desired by others, will never become law, take a chance by voting for the measure. In this way they corral the votes of those who want it passed and they count on the others subsequently to forget about it since the bill didn't become law anyway.

The majority of the members of the House at this session, however, are not likely to be stampeded by threats of veto. This is because all of them come up for reelection and nearly every one of the bills which is slated for passage despite opposition by some of the young New Dealers is the type of legislation which is believed to represent the prevailing trend in public opinion. In the Senate only one-third of the membership is up for election. Here there is a tendency to go along with the administration, but surprises may be expected just the same.

Presidential vetoes are often the best kind of ammunition for campaign use. If Mr. Roosevelt is not a candidate for a third term, the presence of the vetoes in the record of the incumbent administration tends just the same to strengthen the case of the opposition in those instances where public opinion is with a majority of Congress rather than in agreement with the veto.

HUDSON RIVER STEAMBOATS

These articles are written from the collection of George W. Murdock, veteran marine engineer.

No. 140—"John McCausland"

The story of the steamboat "John McCausland" is the tale of a vessel that was constructed at Rondout, powered with an engine of local construction, and was in service in this vicinity for a period of 21 years when she finally succumbed to the flames.

Jefferson McCausland built the steamboat "John McCausland" at Rondout in 1884. Her wooden hull was 64 feet six inches long, breadth of beam 15 feet, depth of hold five feet. Her gross tonnage was rated at 23 tons and she was listed at $2 net tons. The engine of the "John McCausland" was built by McEntee and Dillon at Rondout, and was of the high-pressure type with cylinder diameter of 14 inches with a 14-inch stroke.

To the "John McCausland" goes the honor of being one of the first of a number of small passenger steamboats built for service on short routes out of Rondout. Her owner, Ferdinand Voight, had her constructed for service between Rondout and Edenville, and her trim lines made her well-adapted for this type of passenger service. She made many trips up and down the Rondout creek between the community of Edenville at the head of the Delaware and Hudson Canal, and Rondout, and usually her accommodations were taxed to capacity—because one must remember that this period in the history of water travel was before the advent of the automobile, and short trips such as the distance covered by the "John McCausland" were a bit of a hardship and had to be made by "horse and buggy," (which seems today as a slow means of transportation, if water transportation was not available.

After some years the "John McCausland" was sold to Captain Frank Roosa and B. D. Wolf, and the new owners withdrew the small vessel from her original route and placed her in service between Rondout and Glasco. This new course proved to be the last for the "John McCausland"—for on Wednesday morning at 2:30 o'clock, on October 14, 1905, the trim little steamer was destroyed by fire—bringing to a close 21 years of service.

On Tuesday evening, October 13, 1905, members of the Monumental Lodge of Tivoli chartered the steamboat "John McCausland" for a trip to Rondout where they were to be the guests of a local lodge. Early in the morning of the following day the vessel, and the "John McCausland" was on her way back to Rondout. Engineer Alexander Vining discovered flames issuing from the woodwork underneath the forward part of the vessel's boiler, and realizing that they were already beyond control, summoned Captain Roosa and notified him that the vessel was evidently doomed. Engineer Vining then coaled up the boiler to increase the steam pressure, and Captain Roosa sent the "John McCausland" under full steam for the nearest shore—which happened to be at High Point on the east side of the river. When the vessel was within a few feet of the shore and almost completely enveloped in flames, Captain Roosa and Engineer Vining jumped overboard wading to shore and returning to Rondout later in the morning. The "John McCausland" was completely destroyed at a loss said to be in the neighborhood of $10,000, with insurance coverage of $6,000.

Germans Close In on British bring reinforcements through the British fleet guarding the approaches to Trondheim.

Airport Is Damaged

He declared that British air raids had done considerable damage to the airport at Varnes near Trondheim and that the Germans had put about 2,000 of the male population to work making repairs. Those who volunteered were paid for their services, while those who refused were impressed, the correspondent said.

The town of Levanger, halfway between Trondheim and Steinkjer, which was the scene of heavy fighting 10 days ago before the British fell back to their present positions, was described as a dead town, virtually deserted by its inhabitants.

Reports from Narvik, Norway's iron ore port in the far north, indicated the situation there was unchanged, with the German garrison surrounded by British and Norwegian troops.

The Swedish author Arthur Lundquist, returning to Sweden from Narvik, where he was visiting when the Germans landed, said the Nazis had forbidden the civilian population to leave, believing their presence would prevent a British bombardment.

Swedes, relying on a policy of "armed neutrality" to keep the war next door from spreading their way, rushed to subscribe to a new defense loan of 500,000,000 kroner (about $118,500,000). Indications were that the loan would be subscribed in short order.

An official announcement disclosed that German-Swedish trade discussions in Stockholm had been completed but that they would continue in Berlin on the basis of agreements thus far reached. It was obvious that Sweden, trying to avoid playing favorites was concerned last her iron mines at Kiruna eventually become a bone of contention between Germany and the allies.

Stockholm will witness a unique event tomorrow when the nation's major political parties unite in a general defense celebration which will take the place of the annual Socialist demonstration usually held on that date.

American Foreign Shipping Reaches Highest Points

Wood pulp imports from Scandinavia to the U. S. showed a sharp drop in March, total imports being but 18,627 tons as against 86,148 tons in March 1939. Importations of newsprint from overseas, for the same month were only 1,854 tons against 35,029 tons in the same month last year. Last year's imports of newsprint accounted for 8.8 per cent of the total consumption in the U. S., while imports of chemical pulp from overseas equaled 20 per cent of the amount used in this country.

Despite the forced diversion of American vessels from the war zone and the withdrawal of passenger lines from the North Atlantic American foreign shipping activity has reached the highest point in a decade, according to Treasury Department statistics released yesterday. Customs Bureau reports that in January and February 1,042 American ships cleared for foreign ports as against 932 ships in the same period a year ago. Cargo carried totaled 2,562,000 tons as against 2,264,000 tons in the 1939 months.

As a result of the war world tonnage available for service has been reduced about 10 per cent and as a result the balance is finding no difficulty in earning profits far above pre-war levels. One effect seen of the steadily increasing demand for cargo space is the possibility of American railroads obtaining a good part of the traffic normally moved by intercoastal ship lines.

Harvey D. Gibson, chairman of the World's Fair, said yesterday that if attendance at the fair this year equals last year the corporation's bonds will be worth between 40 and 50 cents on the dollar. If attendance reaches 40,000,000 the bonds will be paid off in full, provided bondholders consider interest paid on the obligations as amortization on their face value.

Annual report of Socony Vacuum Oil Co. states that there was virtually no destruction or confiscation of assets in foreign countries, except in Russian occupied Poland, in 1939. Consolidated net income in 1939, after deduction of $5,300,000 for foreign reserves or writeoffs, was $34,452,710, equal to $1.10 a share. In 1938 net was $40,106,917, or $1.29 a share.

Some of the favored specialties, such as paper, aircraft and shipping stocks attracted some buying Monday, and a few of them were among the 30 stocks making new highs for the year, but generally the market was a dull one, the total of 566,950 shares being the lowest for a full day since March 18. Grumman Aircraft, which went on the big board last week, was one of the 10 most active stocks of the day and went into new high, for a change of 3/4 point for the day. Such changes as there were left the Dow-Jones averages slightly higher. Industrials gained .29 point, to close at 148.41; rails were ahead .03, to 30.74; and utilities showed a gain of .17, to 24.98.

Staple markets showed an irregularly higher trend and the commodity index was up .13 point for the day. After early declines into new lows for the movement wheat rallied and closed 1/4 to 1/2 cent a bushel higher. In a nervous and thin market cotton futures closed two points lower to three higher. Cuban raw sugar, prompt shipment position, was offered at 2.85, duty paid.

Abroad stocks generally were lower on London market, the European uncertainties depressing prices and averages being off for the day. On Amsterdam Bourse domestic securities were quiet, American shares higher. Paris was irregular.

Townsend Meeting

There will be a meeting at Manerchor Hall, Greenkill avenue, of No. 2 Townsend Business Men's Club tomorrow evening. A report will be given on the progress of the Townsend bill in Washington. Entertainment will follow the business session and the public is invited.

New York, April 30 (AP)—Steel, motors, aircraft and utilities attracted a little buying in today's stock market, but many leaders were neglected.

In one of the slowest sessions of the year to date, fractional gainers had a shade the best of it near the final hour. Transfers were at the rate of approximately 550,000 shares.

Wall Street apparently was unable to form any real opinion on conflicting war shifts in Norway and the result was that many traders continued to stand aside.

Domestic business news, on the other hand, was fairly encouraging and some optimism was derived from the numerous favorable first quarter corporation earnings statements.

European markets steadied after early hesitancy. Bonds and commodities were a trifle uneven.

Among stocks accorded support were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, North American, American Water Works, Westinghouse, Briggs Mfg. and Standard Oil of N. J.

The majority of rails, coppers, shippings, papers, mail orders and rubbers lacked rising steam.

Inclined to file forward in the curb were Cities Service, Cooper-Bessemer, Electric Bond & Share, Puget Sound Pulp and Singer Mfg.

Losing Hat Brings Driver Difficulty

James Jackson, Jr., found it rather expensive to lose his hat while driving south on Route 9-W near the Twin Maple Hatcheries Monday afternoon.

Jackson, driving a Ford roadster south, lost his hat and stopped to recover it. He endeavored to back his car up the road but in the process swung over to the left of the road and collided with a truck owned by the Mason-Dixon Lines, Bristol, Va., which was being driven south by Elston Lockhart, of Church Hill, Tenn.

Closely following the Mason-Dixon truck was a truck owned by Sheldon Tompkins of Kingston. In order to avoid a crash with the other truck and the Ford car, the driver of the Tompkins truck was compelled to swing wide to the left and passed safely.

State Trooper Arthur Reilly placed Jackson under arrest and charged him with reckless driving. Before Justice Bennett a $10 fine or 10 days in jail was imposed. Jackson paid the $10.

Catskill Plant Destroyed by Fire

Mintzer Bros. coal and ice plant at 155 Water street, Catskill, was practically destroyed by fire which was discovered at 4:55 o'clock this morning.

Catskill police reported the fire was first discovered in the coal pockets and spread to the ice house. The coal pockets were destroyed and the ice house, which was filled with ice, was practically destroyed. There was a small amount of coal in the coal pockets at the time.

The Mintzer Bros. plant was located on Water street along Catskill creek and almost back of the Main street offices of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corp. Sparks from the burning structures flooded the business area for a distance of two blocks but there was no damage and the fire was confined to the coal and ice plants.

Years ago coal was brought to the coal pockets by water but of late coal has been brought in by rail and trucked to the plant which is located just above the old highway bridge across Catskill creek.

No estimate of the damage was available.

plication he had received from Fireman McElrath.

McElrath is stationed at the Central Fire Station. During the many years he has been a member of the fire department he has proved to be one of its most efficient members. He was appointed a paid fireman on May 8, 1910.

The names of the other two firemen who rumor states plan to retire were not made public.

Rosina Galli Dies

New York, April 30 (AP)—Rosina Galli, 44, former premiere danseuse and ballet mistress of the Metropolitan Opera Company, died of pneumonia today in Milan, Italy. This announcement was made by her husband, Giulio Gatti-Casazza, former general manager of the Metropolitan. "With deep sorrow I wish to communicate to my friends of the Metropolitan the death of my wife."

Only Small Fires Reported Locally; Other Areas Hit

With the higher peaks of the mountain country still covered with snow, fire wardens report little liability yet of forest fires in the mountain sections but lowlands now present serious fire hazards. Fire wardens in this locality have taken their positions in fire towers and thus far only small blazes have been reported.

Observer G. Edson, at the Gallis Hill fire tower, on Monday reported a fire at High Woods which burned over three acres before being brought under control. There was also a fire near Hickorybush reported which burned over about five acres and Warden Reed at Mohonk reported a fire north of Plutarch which burned over a considerable area. This morning visibility was reported poor in this area.

Monday in Dutchess county one of the most serious forest fires in years swept 3,000 acres of land in the Pawling mountain country and burned over to the Connecticut state line while 300 men battled to bring it under control. The fire was the most serious of 90 forest fires which have been located in eastern New York in the past couple of days.

The Dutchess county fire started near the South Quaker Hill estate of Lowell Thomas, news commentator, threatened the estate of District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey. The fire was not brought under control until men from Pawling, Dover Plains, Patterson and Milford, Conn., had been summoned by fire wardens when the fire got beyond control of the fire wardens. Heavy dry grass and leaves and a lack of spring greenery caused the fire to spread rapidly.

In 1886, the first year of record, the average cash wage with board on New York farms was $14 a month.

Chapter 23

Hugh's Problem

BRENDA knew the story of Hugh's quarrel with his wife, now.

It was a strangely dramatic incident—if incident was a strong enough word. It appeared that soon after Linda and Hugh were married Linda's brother, assistant manager in a wholesale lumber company, had absconded with some of the company's funds. It was not a large sum of money, and the court had let it be known that the penalty meted out to the boy would not be too severe; but Jim McCaskey had fled in terror from any punishment.

Late one night while Linda slept, Jim appeared at the studio, penniless, hungry, ragged. Hugh, who was finishing some work, fed him and then talked to him. As one man to another, he appealed to him to give himself up, serve his sentence, and live down his one mistake. His employer would be glad to offer him his former place.

Perhaps Jim had found the world more terrifying to a fugitive than he had expected; perhaps his brother-in-law's eloquence overpowered a never-strong will. At any rate, he agreed to the plan, and, dressed in one of Hugh's suits and with money in his pockets, he had taken a train to the scene of his theft before Linda was awake.

"I thought she would be glad," the artist said bitterly. "Fool that I was, I was patting myself on the back all the time I told her about it. She'd worried, you see, about where the boy was; how he was. She used to cry for hours sometimes, wondering if he was dead. I told her all that was ended now. That in a few years—maybe only a couple—Jim would be a free man, and all the past forgotten. I told her it was the one and only way to make a man of him."

"And it was," Brenda said sturdily. "He'd have got into worse trouble, drifting around the country like that. But I suppose your Linda flew into a rage, and accused you of practically arresting her dear Jim yourself, and in the end she packed her bags and walked out on you."

He nodded gloomily. "You talk as if you'd been there! Nothing I could say calmed her. I was Jim's enemy, and therefore hers. She'd die before she'd see me again. She would go to the town where Jim was serving his sentence, and wait for him; and when he came out they'd go away together!"

'I've Written And Written'

BRENDA had given a good deal of consideration to Hugh's problem. More than that, she had acted, inactivity of any kind being impossible to a nature like hers.

She began a series of letters to the friend in New York who knew Linda. She painted a glowing picture of Hugh as a successful artist, as a friend and neighbor, a pathetic one of him as a deserted husband. She hinted that a great wrong had been done him by his wife; that wife whose conscience apparently hurt her since she had not used the generous sum Hugh sent her monthly.

The puzzled girl in New York began to ask why Brenda was getting so worked up over the matter. That stopped her in mid-air, so to speak, and she let a week pass before she wrote again. The friend made an entirely erroneous deduction as to the situation; and, never a reticent person, she passed it on, with footnotes, bibliography and an introduction to Linda herself. Then silence—for a long fortnight.

"But I don't know what more to do, Hugh," Brenda protested one morning. "I've written and written. I've told you before that if you hunt up Linda you'll simply scare her away. Short of going back to New York to see her myself—"

He gripped her arm tensely. "Do that, Brenda! Why didn't we think of that before! Linda doesn't know you, she won't try to hide from you, you can show her my side of the story. She—"

"Hugh!" Brenda cocked her head on one side and listened. "Didn't you hear a noise then, Hugh?"

"Confound the noise! Brenda, you'll do this for me, won't you? The expense is mine, of course—" "It's behind those bushes, Hugh! Do you suppose somebody's listening, or is it a dog?"

"Don't you call me a dog, Brenda Burnham," said a severe voice. "Nor intimate that I'm eaves-dropping, either." Miss Ormond stalked into the open. "So this is what happens when I see you disappear around the old house so often! Brenda, I'm shocked beyond measure."

Brenda patted the old doorstep on which she sat. "Don't be! It's broad daylight, you know. Come and sit down and visit awhile."

But Miss Ormond was implacable. "I haven't time," she informed them. "I'm going straight home to write Anne Burnham about this. I shall send it air mail, special delivery."

The girl frowned. Aunt Anne trusted her, but at that Brenda did not want her peace of mind disturbed. Not telling what sort of interpretation the Ormond would put on these innocent meetings! A sudden inspiration descended on her.

"Hugh, may I tell Miss Ormond what we've been talking about? It may be she will be able to advise us."

The cartoonist gazed at her blankly. He had reached that state of misery where he cared little who knew his story. He nodded a morose assent. So Brenda poured it all out, being careful before-hand to obtain a vow of silence from Miss Ormond.

The writer in the girl came to the front in this recital. She told it simply, not seeking to dramatize what, she considered, was already dramatic enough. She was gratified halfway through the story to see Miss Ormond sink down on the step beside her, listening absently.

"And Hugh is so worried about his wife that he feels he must talk about her or go mad," she finished. "He and I both know there must be some very simple solution to the problem but so far we've not been able to find it."

She added artfully: "Could you think of one, Miss Ormond?"

'Plead Your Cause'

THE eyes of the old teacher brightened. "And you call yourself creative artists, both of you! With not a spark of imagination between you! There's just one person who can persuade Linda Salts that her husband did the right thing for her brother."

"Who?" they exclaimed in one voice.

"The brother himself—this Jim!" And as Hugh's mouth fell slightly open with surprise and even Brenda's pretty lips parted, she smiled slyly. "You, Mr. Salts—well, Hugh, then—write to the brother and explain the situation; ask him to talk to your wife. She's in touch with him, you may be sure of that; probably goes occasionally to see him when she can get away from work! If Jim is still convinced that your advice was good—and it was good, my dear boy, make no mistake about that!—then he'll be glad enough to plead your cause with Linda."

She rose, brushed dried leaves from her coat. "Now there's to be no more of these clandestine meetings, children. If you, Hugh, feel you must talk about Linda you may do one of two things: send for me, or if you feel Brenda is younger and understands you better, ask her to meet you in my house."

She stalked ahead of them and the first smile Brenda had seen of the man's face for weeks twisted his lips now. Brenda herself had an extraordinary feeling of relief. Some instinct told her that this woman, to whom the hearts and minds of thousands of young human animals had been laid bare, was far better qualified to handle an extraordinary situation than she, Brenda, was.

Returning to the old Burnham home she was confronted with a problem of an entirely different sort. Judge Harper was awaiting her in the living room.

"Alaine and Ned again?" she demanded.

He shook his head. "I've asked Isobel Burke to see that we're not interrupted for the next half hour," he began. "I—I have something rather odd to show you, my dear."

"Why, Judge Harper!" She looked at him in astonishment. His hand was trembling, his bushy eyebrows twitched nervously.

He took a letter from his pocket and thrust it into her hand. "Read it!"

It was a pale pink, perfumed affair, covered with spidery words in faint blue ink. Brenda had to bend close to decipher it.

"My dear Judge," the letter began. "It is true that you and I both live on The Shortest Street where the old conventions prevail. But on the other hand I have lately been thrown so much with my young contemporaries next door that I have more or less acquired the modern viewpoint."

And the basis of that viewpoint, my dear Judge, is honesty, stark honesty.

"Some time ago I had a little visit with our dear Brenda, and I must say her cosmopolitan, straight-forward, and above all, intensely honest attitude toward all problems of life blew away from my mind the last rose-colored cobweb of maidenly reticence."

"But I never saw a rose-colored cobweb!" Brenda paused to comment in increasing bewilderment.

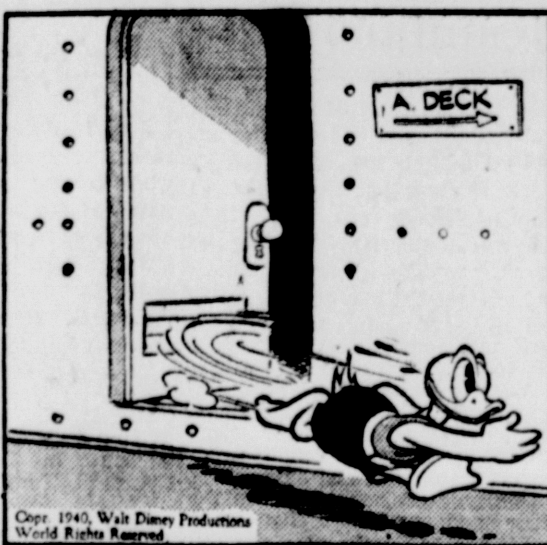

"No, and you never saw a letter like this one either. I'll wager, like the grim reply, 'Go on. Read it!'"

A LOAD OFF HIS FEET

STARRING POPEYE.

A good name makes swell scandal news.

Friend—If you ever married again what kind of a man would you look for?

Woman—One who worried over the bigness of his income tax and not one who worried over his debts.

Depressing, isn't it? Its most amazing what we'll buy.

Because it's called a style. And then we'll wear the freakish things.

Those things which make men smile.

One year our skirts must drag the ground.

The next, reveal our knees.

In summer we wear furs; and when its cold, thin things—and freeze.

Beads, flowers, ruffles, feathers, pleats.

Furs, lace, all mixed together; I've stepped forth in them all—except one.

Just can't stand a feather. No feathers shall adorn my form.

Though stylish near and far; Cause somehow I associate The thought of them with tar!

—Lyla Myers

Herman—Such a bother deciding about holidays.

Gustavus—It doesn't bother me. My boss tells me when to go, and my wife tells me where.

People give for many different reasons but seldom out of the goodness of their heart.

He—Believe me, honey, if your sister gets Frank for a husband, she'll be a lucky girl.

She—Yes, I don't let many of her boy friends get away from me.

Friendships

We need friends more than anything in life... But to gain a friend, you must first prove yourself a friend... To be a friend you must interest yourself in someone else... It is only as we enrich the lives of others that their friendships enrich our own in return.

No Wonder She's a Blushing Bride They tell of the blushing bride who to the altar goes.

Down the aisle of the church between the friend-filled rows: There's Billy whom she motor-ed with, and Bob, with whom she swam.

There's Jack, she used to golf with him, and Steve who called her "lamb."

There's Ted, the football man she owned, and Don of tennis days.

There's Herbert, too, and blonde Eugene; they took her to the play. And there's Harry, high school beau, with whom she used to mush.

No wonder she's a blushing bride, Ye Gods! She ought to blush.

Customer—Do you have anything for gray hairs?

Conscientious Druggist—Nothing, sir, but the greatest respect.

The doctor who diagnoses a case without asking a question is the horse doctor.

Professor—Name a great time-saver.

Whether a mule is stubborn or just determined, the fact remains that he is always mulish.

Dorothy—Do you think kissing is unhealthy?

Charlie—I don't know. I've never been—

Dorothy—What! Never been kissed?

Charlie—No; I've never been unhealthy.

Joe—Did you ever do any public speaking?

Jim—Only once—when I proposed to a girl over a rural telephone line.

Urges Full Attendance At May School Meetings

Charles A. Brind Jr., Director of the Division of Law of the State Education Department in an address in Albany yesterday urged all citizens of school districts to attend the annual school meetings of their districts which is held, by law, at 7:30 o'clock on the evening of Tuesday, May 7th, and to take an active part in the discussion and voting.

Besides the election of officers, Mr. Brind stated, the budget for 1940 will be adopted. Provision for the transportation of pupils who are attending public or private schools of elementary or high school grade who are in need of this service must be authorized by vote at these meetings.

Mr. Brind explained that the law provides that voters at these school meetings must be citizens over 21 years old, who have lived in the district for 30 days, who own or rent real estate there or are parents of one or more children of school age or have a child or children living permanently in their homes.

Retail sales of new motor vehicles in Canada during 1939 amounted to 114,474 units valued at $125,967,521.

Bard Will Present "The Adolescents"

Annandale-on-Hudson, April 29.—The first spring production of The Bard Theatre will be a new play, "The Adolescents," by John Boruff, Friday, Saturday, Sunday and Monday evenings, May 3, 4, 5 and 6.

Mr. Boruff, a graduate of the Yale University theatre, is co-author of The Theatre Guild's "Washington Jitters" of last season. His new play, about life in a boys' preparatory school, is not only a very touching comedy, but an interesting study in juvenile psychology.

Miss Angie Kroll, a recent graduate of The Neighborhood Playhouse, has come from New York to play the feminine lead. Peter Hobbs, a senior, and Alvin T. Sapinsley, a freshman, are cast as the male leads.

"The Adolescents" has been staged by Paul Morrison, head of the drama division. Richard Burns has designed the sets, and Scott MacKeown is stage manager. Others in the cast are: Lincoln Armstrong, Alfred Roe, Wayne Horvitz, William Hale, Frank Bjornsgaard, James Westbrook, Frank Overton, Theodore Strongin and Robert McQueney.

Curtain time is 8:40 p. m.

KRIPPLEBUSH

Kripplebush, April 30.—School was closed Friday as the teacher, Mrs. Van Rensselaer, attended a conference at Ellenville.

Mr. and Mrs. Irvin H. Barley of Ellenville called on Mr. and Mrs. Claude Christiana and family Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Schwarz spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. C. Schwarz.

To Declare War On 'Screwdrivers'

The Kingston police department plans to declare war on "screwdrivers" and "screwjays," Friday, May 3, according to Police Chief Charles Phinney.

A "screwdriver" is a motorist who pulls "traffic boners." He refuses to respect the rights of other drivers and goes about in a parade of screeching brakes, bleating horns and without hand signals or regard for other cars.

The "screwdriver" parks double, makes right hand turns from the left hand lane, tries to beat traffic lights, drives in the center of a two lane street or highway, crowds other motorists and commits other discourteous acts which inflict on his fellow-motorists an undue amount of stop-and-go driving and traffic jams. "Screwdriving," according to Dr. Miller McClintock, noted traffic authority, is responsible for 25 per cent of all traffic congestion.

A "screwjay" is a thoughtless pedestrian who, without regard for his own personal safety and the inconvenience he may cause automobile drivers, crosses streets whenever and wherever he feels like it. In addition to creating a definite safety hazard, the "screwjay" is the cause of 10 per cent of the traffic congestion in business districts.

If "screwdriving" and "screwjaying" can be eliminated, Chief Phinney estimates that traffic on Broadway and other principal arteries can be speeded up as much as 35 per cent.

"What most of us motorists and pedestrians in Kingston need is a little more courtesy," the chief remarked. "Too often we fail to respect the rights of other drivers when we are driving and motorists when we are on foot."

We park double and hold up traffic for blocks in back of us just to save ourselves the inconvenience of walking a few extra steps.

"Seldom do we think of the potential danger to ourselves, the jamming-on of brakes and the shifting of gears for motorists and the traffic congestion we cause by thoughtlessly crossing the street in the middle of the block instead of at one of the places designated by the police department," the chief continued. "Those of us who jay-walk are 'screwjays' of which there are many types."

"The studious 'screwjay' crosses the street with his head down, either in deep meditation or reading something. This type is especially dangerous for he looks neither to the right nor left as he goes from one sidewalk to the other."

"The 'Spirit of '76' 'screwjay' marches from curb to curb in the middle of the block, with hand upraised, almost daring some driver to hit him while the football 'screwjays' dodge across the street in front and in back of cars like a fleet-footed half back on his way to a touchdown."

"Not only for our own safety, but as a good example for the younger generation, all of us adults should cross streets only at places designated by the police department and then only when an arrow or traffic light has stopped motor traffic going in the opposite direction."

"Friday we are going to drive around the business district in a light cream colored car and tell the 'screwjays' and 'screwdrivers' in a courteous manner, over the car's loudspeaker system, about the 'traffic boners' they are pulling."

The courtesy crusader car, with sound amplifying equipment, is a part of the Shell Safety Squadron which has been put at the disposal of the police by the local dealers of the Shell Oil Company, Inc., as a part of their nationwide Share-the-Road crusade.

Other units of the Safety Squadron are a specially constructed "reflex" testing machine and a puppet show which will demonstrate the evils of "screwdriving" and "screwjaying." The reflex tester and puppet show will be located on Wall street between 10 a. m. and 6 p. m. Friday.

Good Taste Today

by Emily Post

(Author of "Etiquette," "The Personality of a House," "The Blue Book of Social Usage," etc.)

WHAT TO REPLY WHEN SOMEBODY SAYS "THANK YOU FOR CALLING"

Depends Upon Circumstances, Emily Post Tells Puzzled Correspondent Who "Fades Out" with "Good-bye."

There is no answer when some one says "Thank you for calling" after you have ended your telephone conversation with her. Unless perhaps to say, "I hope I didn't take up too much of your time, or to one you have not heard from for a long time. 'It was good to hear your voice.' Of course, if you were really doing some one a favor by telephoning, then you would answer, 'You're very welcome,' or 'I was glad to let you know about this.'"

This is the reply to the many letters sent me lately, asking what to say at such times. One writer explained that such phrases of politeness always left her at a loss and she usually faded out at her end with nothing but "good-bye." Which is in most cases not at all a bad idea! The greatest possible fault of most people who telephone is that they DON'T say "good-bye."

Taking a First Cruise

Dear Mrs. Post: I am going to take a first cruise, alone. I know that I shall be put at a table with other people in the dining-room, and I am wondering just how the problem of introducing myself to them should be handled. I am a widow and I won't know any one.

Answer: There are very few rules further than those of naturally tactful impulse. But at least you do not go down to the table and abruptly announce, "I am Mrs. Brown." Whether you say anything at all at the first meal depends upon how many are at table and whether any of them seem responsive. At a table for six, let us say, if two are talking together and the three others are also together, you say nothing unless something is said to you. If one alone is sitting next to you, you perhaps make a remark. If this is encouraged, you go on; if not, you stop.

According to best taste it is always bad form to mention names—your own, or that of your friends—to strangers. But if others introduce themselves to you, you can not very well refuse to give your name as Mrs. or Miss Whatever-it-is. When you leave the table, you nod good-bye to any one who may be looking at you. And at future meals you say "Good morning" or "Good evening."

If you are encouraged to talk you do so. The fact that you have never been introduced is of no

Anna Blake Dies And Keeps Secret

Hempstead, N. Y., April 30 (AP)—Blonde Anna Blake, for three decades the wife of Arthur Barry, notorious jewel thief, died yesterday, carrying to her grave the secret of her imprisoned husband's pearl and diamond cache.

A detective at her bedside sought until the end to learn the whereabouts of the hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of gems stolen from fashionable homes in Long Island, Newport, Florida and Connecticut.

The suave Barry, a native of Worcester, Mass., is serving a 25-year sentence in Attica state prison for robbery and assault.

Inspector Harold R. King twice told the dying and penniless Anna of a $24,000 reward offered to the discoverer of $240,000 in jewels stolen from the home of Banker Carl J. Schmidlapp in Mill Neck, N. Y., but she kept her silence.

Barry's operations included the $83,000 robbery of Jesse L. Livermore's estate at Kings Point, Long Island, in the 1920's.

Republicans Expect Greatest Fight In Phrasing 'Keep Out of War' Item

Something to Tell

Heber Blankenhorn, NLRB investigator, is shown as he testified in Washington before the house committee investigating the board that he wrote a memorandum which expressed the opinion that when the United States Steel Company signed a CIO contract Justice Owen Roberts was influenced to cast the deciding vote in favor of the Wagner Act.

had shown them to President Roosevelt, were handed to reporters in the White House lobby.

"We can not beat the Republican party in November," the messages said, "if we concentrate on beating each other now."

Selection of national convention delegates continued, meanwhile, with a primary election today in Massachusetts. On the Republican side, an unpledged slate of 34 headed by Governor Saltonstall was opposed by one filed by William H. McManis, an old age pension advocate, and pledged to Thomas E. Dewey without the latter's consent.

A Democratic slate was pledged to Postmaster General Farley but state leaders have predicted it would support Mr. Roosevelt if he runs. The slate had opposition in some districts.

Rhode Island Republicans in convention yesterday selected eight unpledged delegates, and Oklahoma Republicans chose 22 unpledged delegates.

Republican platform talk was interwoven with discussions of Stassen's address to the Republican convention at Philadelphia, which opens June 24.

It generally was agreed that Stassen would offer no specific foreign policy, leaving that question to the platform committee. He was advised by party leaders in Congress, however, to emphasize the idea that Republicans were determined to prevent American involvement in foreign wars.

The tall, 33-year-old governor, it was reported, plans to make these declarations in a 45-minute keynote address.

That the administration's reciprocal trade program should be repealed or trade agreements should be subject to Senate ratification.

That relief should be adequate to prevent suffering, but that administration should be turned over to states and localities.

That Democrats have been extravagant with public funds and that Republicans propose a return to a balanced budget.

That key New Deal social programs should be retained and perfected. Some change should be made in the Wagner labor relations act, perhaps along the lines suggested by the AFL.

That farm benefit payments should be disbursed on the basis of cooperation with a broad soil conservation program, and that a two-price system should be instituted. Under the latter, the farmer would receive a higher price for that portion of his crop consumed domestically than the part sold abroad at world prices.

Women Match Men's Skill At Golf By Right Swing

New Booklet a Guide to Game

A woman golfer men admire and like to play with! Yes, golf is one sport in which women as well as men may excel. It's such good exercise, too. The swing slims your waistline, the walking improves your general health.

And playing a good game of golf is simply a matter of learning properly. If you fail to drive as far and as accurately as you should, the chances are you do not understand the swing. You apply leverage to your club instead of really swinging.

To get the feel of a proper swing, take a handkerchief or string, tie a weight to one end and practice swinging this—starting with a small arc, which you gradually increase. Do you feel how freely you control the movement? This is the way to control your club.

Now, exert pressure on the two ends. You merely destroy the swing—proof that it's not leverage but swinging that puts maximum power behind the club head.

Other principles of golf you may learn as easily. In our new 32-page booklet, Ernest Jones, teacher of champions, tells how to hold a golf club; describes the proper stance; shows you how to swing at the ball with force and accuracy. Explains rules and fine points of the game.

Send 10c in coin for your copy of SWINGING THE THING IN GOLF to Kingston Daily Freeman Home Service, 635 Sixth Ave., New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, and the NAME of booklet.

Mrs. John Conner is home after working for Mrs. Battelle.

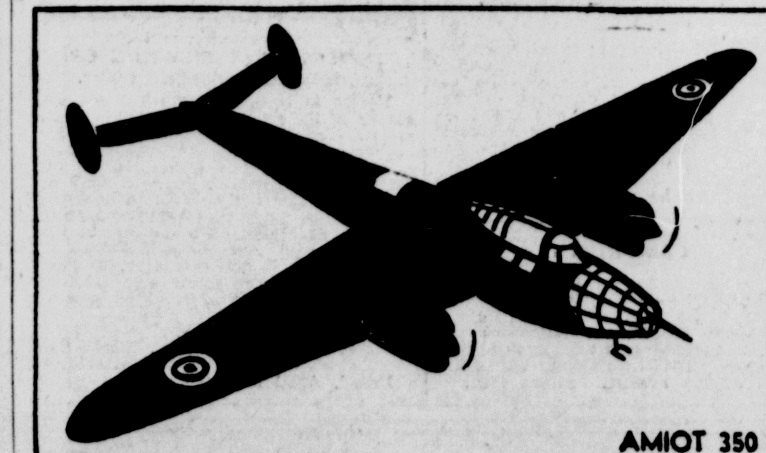

Mr. and Mrs. Keithford Chambers and Mrs. Elizabeth Ford of Kingston called on Mrs. R. Baird Sunday.

Miss Frances Brooks visited her grandparents last week.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee and family have moved in Mrs. Osterhout's house.

Air Fighters

France's Amiot Bomber

The French Air Ministry has ordered quantity production of this type long-range bomber. She carries 1½ tons of bombs. Twin engines of around 950 horsepower produce cruising speed of about 280 m.p.h. Her range is 1,240 miles. The span of wings is 80 feet; length, about 59 feet. Gunner and bomb-aimer share the transparent nose.

Vitamin E Is Good For Roaring Ears

Washington, April 30 (AP)—Deafness and roaring noises in the ears may be corrected by eating large amounts of vitamin E, the fertility vitamin.

Dr. Emanuel M. Josephson of New York city told members of the Acoustical Society of America today that while deafness and fertility had nothing in common, the vitamin was effective for both body deficiencies.

The deafness results from a lack of creatine, one of the substances normally present in the muscles. Insufficient creatine also causes the weakening disease known as myasthenia gravis and other conditions in which the nerves fail to actuate the muscles normally.

"The type of progressive deafness associated with roaring ear noises occurs in persons suffering from Vitamin E deficiency," Dr. Josephson said.

He added that "it can be relieved permanently by the administration of Vitamin E," which is obtained from wheat germ oil, together with a rich diet furnishing adequate amounts of creatine to the muscles.

Business Group To Meet Thursday

A change in the time for the monthly meeting of the Uptown Business Men's Association has been announced by President Louis Weiner. In order that more time may be had for the discussion of various problems, including the one-way street plan, parking meters and other prospective improvements in the business area, the meeting has been called for 8 o'clock Thursday evening at the Hotel Staybent instead of the usual morning meeting.

The meeting Thursday, May 2, will be held at 8 o'clock with a buffet supper served at the close of the meeting. Reservations should be made immediately with Al Flanagan, secretary.

A poll being taken by the merchants' association among customers as to their reaction on the one-way streets in the business section has met with overwhelming approval for the present system of north bound traffic on Wall street above Main street and south bound on Fair street. All customers are invited to express an opinion.

To Give Concert

The New Paltz Normal School Band will present a band concert May 2 at Hurley in celebration of National Music Week. The Parent-Teacher Association of Hurley is sponsoring the concert and Howard B. Hoffman, head of the music department of the Normal School, will direct the band.

Two Patrolmen To Retire Today

Today Policemen William J. Reardon and Urban Healey officially retire from active duty in the Kingston police department, although today is the day off for both officers. Wednesday four new policemen, appointed this year by the police board, will assume their duties as regular members of the department.

Officer Reardon wound up 27 years of efficient service at 4 o'clock this morning, while Officer Healey completed 18 years of service yesterday.

The four new policemen, who assume their duties tomorrow, are Grover Hoffay and Peter Minasian, who were appointed on March 21, and Kenneth E. Hyatt and Gerald L. Every, who were appointed on April 25.

Officers Hoffay and Minasian have been serving as special policemen for some time.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott O. Vining of Port Ewen, a daughter, Elizabeth Ann, in Kingston Hospital.

Select a few flowers for fragrance. Stocks, nasturtiums, sweet alyssum, mignette and the heliconia petunias will bring new charm to your summer picture.

Clean-up Week Observed in City

Kingston residents are taking advantage of the fact that this week is Cleanup Week by cleaning up their properties of the accumulation of winter's rubbish and debris.

Superintendent Ernest Steuding of the public works board said today that the number of requests to send city trucks to cart away the rubbish have been larger this year than ever before.

Householders who desire to do so may pile up the rubbish in their yards and the city trucks, if requests are made, will drive in the yards for pick-ups.

Requests of householders for this service will receive attention in the order received. Those who desire the service should telephone 2114.

Annual vines, such as morning glories, will cover up an ugly spot in your landscape in rapid-fire time. They climb up to 20 feet in a single summer.

Restaurant Is Sold
Marie's Restaurant at 84 Partition street, Saugerties, was sold this week by Bronk Hannay to Romeo Genistrina of Saugerties, who will conduct the diner.

DR. F. M. EDWARDS' DISCOVERY FOR CONSTIPATION

Benefit Nation of Sufferers!

COLUMBUS, OHIO: For over 20 years Dr. F. M. Edwards (widely known physician) successfully treated scores of patients for constipation and the headaches, lack of energy and mental dullness which often result.

This wise Doctor knew liver bile must flow freely every day into your intestines or fatty foods can't be properly digested and you may become constipated. So he kept this in mind when he perfected his famous Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets.

Olive Tablets, being purely vegetable, are wonderful, yet they assure gentle, thorough bowel movements and ALSO help stimulate bile flow. Test their goodness TONIGHT! 15c, 30c, 60c.

Casesy's Win Shuffleboard Championship Over Elks

Last night the Knights of Columbus won five games over the Elks in the shuffleboard tournament at the K. of C. clubhouse, thereby bringing the shuffleboard tournament to an end, making a total of 20 games won for the K. of C. and 10 games won for the Elks, which again gives the Knights the trophy as the shuffleboard champions for 1940.

Had the Elks obtained an even break or better in the number of contests played, a final series would have been played at the Elks clubhouse.

Mickey Ryan, manager for the Elks, congratulated Al Weierich, manager for the Knights, and said the players of all the teams played hard and, judging from the results, the best teams won. He also stated that a challenge will be made to the Knights for another tournament next year.

Al Weierich in accepting the trophy for the Knights replied that the Elks put up a wonderful battle and congratulated them for their good sportsmanship and gameness with better luck for them next time, and when the Elks challenge would be sent to the K. of C. next year, the Knights, he felt sure, would be glad to accept it.

The following are the results for the six contests played last night: K. of C. 41, 42, 35, 46, 46; Elks 36, 35, 44, 27, 22, 16.

Sticks For Sluggers

Babe Ruth's 3½-Pound War Club Believed The Heaviest Ever Used

By JUSTIN ANDERSON
(AP Feature Service)

Louisville — Johnny Mize of the St. Louis Cardinals, 1939 National League batting champion, and Earl Averill, Detroit slugger, swung the heaviest bats in the majors—40-ounce war clubs. Joe DiMaggio knocked his way to the American league batting crown with a 35-ounce bat. The lightest bats are around 34 ounces and a flock of players use this weight stick.

Babe Ruth used the heaviest bat ball players can recall—a 56-ounce club. He gradually reduced the weight until in his final playing days he was using a 40-ounce bat. Ed Roush, the old Cincinnati star, liked a 48-ounce weapon but few now are over 38 ounces.

Rogers Hornsby, the old "Rajah of Swat," is the father of the present day bat, says Henry W. Morrow, probably the nation's No. 1 authority on bats.

40 Years of Experience
He's been making bats for 40 years. Morrow is supervisor for the Hillerich and Bradys plant here. This factory makes most of the bats used in organized baseball.

Morrow says most bats today, particularly among the younger players, are styled after Hornsby's big stick. They may be slightly heavier or lighter, a bit shorter, or with a larger or smaller handle or knob, but they still are a "cousin" of the "RH" model.

To the layman bats appear similar. But not so to the player. "Every bat has a distinct feel," says Morrow. "I can't explain it, but you'd know if you were a player."

Morrow believes that bats used by Hugh Duffy, Ty Cobb and finally Rogers Hornsby would serve as average models to show the development of bat styles.

Here are their measurements:

Joe DiMaggio looks over one of the bats made in the Louisville measurements.

Duffy—Handle, 2½; barrel, 2 5/16; weight 44; length, 34.

Cobb—Handle 1 5/16; barrel, 2 5/16; weight 37-42; length, 35.

Hornsby—Handle, 1 5/32; barrel, 2 21/32; weight, 34-38; length, 34-36.

Before the Rajah's time bats had thicker handles, smaller barrels and were heavier. The length hasn't changed much. The veteran Al Simmons, because of his peculiar stance (he stands for from the plate) used the longest bat—38 inches. The great hitter Wee Willie Kieffer used the shortest, 31 inches. The shortest now used is 34 inches—by Crossetti of the Yankees, Hack of the Cubs and Werber of the Reds.

Jimmy Foxx and Hank Greenberg have about the smallest handled bats because they have small hands. The diameter of their bats is approximately 1½ inches.

The Hornsby model is still the best seller, with bats like those used by DiMaggio, Foxx and Ducky Medwick next in line.

Most players use two or three dozen bats during a season. Babe Hermann, now playing on the Pacific coast, used more than any other. He orders 18 dozen a year.

Kingston 4th in Small Bore Shoot Sunday at Po'keepsie

The first outdoor small bore team match of the Mid-Hudson Rifle League was held Sunday at Poughkeepsie. Kingston placed fourth with a total score of 1851x 2000.

The course fired was 20 shots prone at 50 yards and 20 shots prone at 100 yards. Any type sights were allowed, but the users of telescopic sights were penalized three points on each individual total score.

The day was conducive to poor scores because of shifting wind which made it hard to keep the rifle sights properly adjusted. High individual scores were made by C. H. Smith of Poughkeepsie with a total of 386 x 400. Al Hoyt of Kingston, shooting on the Poughkeepsie team, was third high with 384x400 and R. Green of Kingston, shooting on the Kingston team was fifth high with a score of 382x400.

The following towns are members of the league: Poughkeepsie, Coxsack, Newburgh, Kingston, Peekskill, Catskill and New Paltz. Each member of the league will be host to the league once during the summer for a match similar to the one held Sunday. Each member can enter as many men in each shoot as time will allow with the fine high individual scores selected as team scores.

The next league match will be fired at Newburgh Sunday, May 26.

The following are the box scores of the teams in the meet Sunday:

Sports Roundup

By EDDIE BRIEZE

New York, April 30 (AP)—Add bad signs: Yankees dropping too many close ones. . . . Broadway now believes Herman (five-percent-of-the-gross) Taylor of Philly will become Tony Galento's chief brain trust, with Harry Mendel doing the fronting. . . . George Stinewiss and Matty Topkins, star second sacker and shortstop at North Carolina U., have written their pops the Yanks, Indians and Red Sox are making eyes at them. . . . Both are swatting at a .500 clip. . . . Mike Jacobs, who has Ceferino Garcia under contract, has nixed a Garcia-Tony Zale fight in Chicago—wants it himself. . . . The Dodger winning streak is getting so monotonous, Larry MacPhail took Saturday off to watch the horses run at Jamaica.

Today's Guest Star
Ed Danforth, Atlanta Journal: "Add thumbnail descriptions: 'Man Mountain Dean'—what the children see at night when they eat too much fried ham for supper."

That boom to have Tiny Tim, ousted Stanford coach, referee on the coast, was spiked by Tiny, himself. . . . "I'm too fat. . . . If I got up enough wind to chase the boys 30 yards down the field I wouldn't have enough left to blow the whistle," he says. . . . Always the natty dresser, Leo Durocher blocks his uniform cap after each game. . . . Barney Ross will second Davey Day in his N.B.A. "lightweight" title fight with Sammy Angott in Louisville Friday night. . . . Benny Leonard, who put himself behind the eight ball with the Paychek buildup, is trying to get out by going around the country preaching that either God or Pastor will topple Louis shortly. . . . Haw!

Spring Tonic
Bernie Bierman is pitting the city slickers against the hill billys in spring drills at Minnesota. . . . And Line Coach Tarzan Taylor of Marquette is sending blonde forwards against the brunettes. . . . P. S. He hasn't decided which he prefers.

One-Minute Interview
Tony Galento: "When I had Joe Jacobs in my corner I didn't get no headaches from thinking."

Monarchs 3,047
Mark May Stand

Detroit, April 30 (AP)—Three shifts of five-man teams, including 92 booster outfits, are listed for action in the American Bowling Congress championships tonight, but as the 62-day pin marathon nears its end, the chances seem slimmer than ever that the 3,047 mark posted by the Chicago Monarchs will be erased from first place.

Another favorite team, Schlitz of Chicago, fell by the wayside last night with a count of 2,881. The Schlitz quartet, which rolls in the same league with the Monarchs in Chicago and boasts a much higher average, fell to 909 in the opening game. Improvement in the next two games failed to bring them up among the leaders, though their bid was the best of the day.

The minor events leaders also remained undisturbed in yesterday's firing. Bill Spinelle and Tony Ardillo of Rochester, N. Y., topped the doubles entries with 1,277, while George Watts, of Newark, N. J., was high man in the singles with 679.

This is just a random thought on April 30 that might not bear inspection September 30—but wouldn't it be funny if this year the American League had one of those raging three-or-four way battles right through the season and the National League chase developed into a runaway?

Could be, certainly.

Right now the American League lead is held jointly by the Cleveland Indians and Boston Red Sox with the Detroit Tigers scrambling just a game behind. In the senior circuit the Brooklyn Dodgers are far out in front with eight victories and no defeats.

The New York Yankees have been making a farce of the American League pennant maneuvering for years

This is a swell way to spend the week-end, as these sportsmen are doing in one of the streams around Shandaken, but the pleasure is doubly agreeable if one can land a finny prize for the creel, even though it may be a small one to take home to the family.

an hour's concert, from 7 to 7:55, by the American Legion Junior Band, under direction of Salvatore (Sal Cast) Castiglione. Mayor C. J. Heiselman will give a speech of welcome, and at 8 o'clock the amateur show, with 21 acts, will go on. Following this, the beauty contest will be held, and a special dance review presented for the entertainment of the assemblage.

"I'm confident that all who attend tomorrow's amateur show and beauty contest will spend a pleasant night at the auditorium," Commander Melville said. "The Hudson Valley Apple Blossom Festival means a lot to Ulster county and the American Legion is proud to have had a part in the arrangements."

The special beauty contest for redheads, sponsored by the volunteer fire companies of the county, is looked upon as one of the highlights of the program. It will take place prior to the valley contest, with five girls competing. The winner will represent the firemen in the big beauty parade.

Business Men, Others Bidden To Meet Challenge of Crisis

evidently are reflected in prices.

"As we release the present restrictions on business, substitute clear laws, applying alike to all men, for the dictates of unrestrained administrative agencies and reinstate good will and cooperation, we shall develop new industry, improve our present products and give to our people, through lower prices, more real purchasing power. Then we may once again have good jobs for all those who want to work."

The new deal was criticized as a "do-nothing government" by Governor Raymond E. Baldwin (R-Conn) in another prepared address.

"I do not think that the people of this land of ours are 'tired of liberal government,'" he said. "I think they are tired of do-nothing government. They are tired of government under which for eight years the economy of this nation has stood still."

Governor Baldwin said that a balanced budget, economy and efficiency in government and co-operation between government and business and labor did not mean "penny-squeezing" or failure to provide adequate services and aid for those in need.

Connecticut balanced its budget and had a surplus in its treasury, he continued, yet it had no state income tax or sales tax and increased only one old tax—that on liquor.

"But we've had more than a million dollars in increased revenue the last nine months," Baldwin said, "due to increased business and industrial activity, increased production. The drop in WPA" "represents a true gain in employment."

Anniversary to Be Held
By Church at West Park

West Park, April 30—On Thursday, May 2, the Church of the Asension West Park will mark the 98th year of its history by a special evening service at which the Rev. John Marshall Chew, rector of the Church of the Good Shepherd in Newburgh will speak. The service will begin at 8 p. m. and immediately following it there will be an informal reception in the parish house with refreshments served under the direction of Mrs. John zurNeiden of Ulster Park.

In the morning, at 11 o'clock there will be a celebration of the Holy Communion.

On Sunday, May 5 at 11:15 there will be a corporate communion for the whole parish.

The Church of the Ascension, started originally as a mission from St. James' Church, Hyde Park, was built in 1842. The cornerstone was laid in April of that year, and the formal consecration by the Right Rev. Benjamin Treadwell Onderdonk, D. D., Bishop of New York, took place on November 12 of the same year.

that Eddie Glass put them on the spot and said they were satisfied with working conditions and pay for fear of losing their jobs."

"We have filed more than a dozen complaints against the factory with the Federal Minimum Wage and Hour Division," he said, "charging the firm with failure to pay minimum wages of 30 cents an hour and time and a half for overtime work."

"That story about a 1940 automobile breaking down on its way from New York with the payroll last Friday, forcing the workers to wait until 7 o'clock in the evening for their money seems as fantastic as the statement by Glass that the union offered to bring in union workers from Newburgh by bus," Orms told a reporter.

He continued further, "It appears to me that the unemployment situation, so acute in Kingston, is causing employers to think that they can follow any procedure irrespective of the workers' sentiments."

"We want to keep factories in communities where they operate," he said, and cited an incident where the union was credited with holding an industry from removing from Troy to the south, thus saving employment for 400 workers.

Ziegfeld Estate Is Sold
Hastings-on-Hudson, N. Y., April 30 (AP)—The late Florenz Ziegfeld's $200,000 estate, on which he and Billie Burke lived most of their married life, was sold at auction yesterday for $36,000. A Brooklyn real estate operator, Edward Roseman, was the purchaser. He said he had no plans for the property. In the past he has handled business deals for Father Divine, Harlem evangelist. The Ziegfelds lived in the 22-room mansion from their marriage in 1914 until the producer's death in 1932.

The Ford's 123 inches between front and rear springs exceeds any car's at its price. Passengers ride farther ahead of rear spring center in a Ford. Take a ride and feel the difference!

LONGEST in knee-room!

Length where length counts: Rear-seat passengers in this year's Ford get more knee-room than in any other car at the price. And Ford total inside body length exceeds that of many cars far higher in price!

LONGEST on operating economy!

Owners report the precision-built Ford engine needs no added oil between regular changes! Official Gilmore-Yosemite test for 1940 showed 85 h.p. Ford's gas mileage best of all standard-equipped cars at its price!

LONGEST in experience!

28,000,000 Ford-built cars to date! The longest experience and the finest plant in the industry give value that only Ford methods can give! Ford built the first low-cost car ... still builds the finest. Prove it to yourself, at the wheel! Your Ford Dealer wants your deal ... See him today!
